Ron Clark: Family man, philanthropist, farmer

June 12, 1941 – January 14, 2019

By Kaitlyn Clark

The Haldimand Press

CALEDONIA—Haldimand lost one of its best on Monday, January 14, 2019 as local businessman and philanthropist Ron Clark passed away at the age of 78. While he is gone, he certainly will not be forgotten, as Ron seemingly made it his life’s mission to do good in the world.

Ron’s family has a long history in Haldimand, with his grandfather Fred starting the family agricultural business, now known as The Clark Companies, in 1925 when it was just a hatchery in the basement of his Caledonia home. Ron joined the business in 1966, eventually becoming president before handing the reins over to his son, Jason, in 1999.

Never one to brag, Ron, along with his wife Nancy, could never completely stay out of the spotlight. In 2017 they were recognized with the Outstanding Philanthropists award by the Association of Fundraising Professionals for their donations through the Ron and Nancy Clark Foundation. The association described him as “unwaveringly generous by nature and humble by virtue”. In 2012 they were each recognized with a Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal. In 2013 they were recipients of the Honour Roll Award, the highest award given by the Grand River Conservation Authority, for their contributions to redeveloping the Caledonia Kinsmen Park and Taquanyah Conservation Area. They also contributed 75 kilometres of abandoned railway lines to be converted into trails.

Wayne Knox, who knew Ron through their work with the GRCA, said, “Most of us only see the tip of the iceberg when it comes to the positive impact Ron and Nancy and their family have made to just about all of us who live in this area ... Their philanthropy extends across just about every level of a local community’s needs.”

Lifetime Achievement

Ron Clark

Ron Clark's daughter Christy Heaslip accepted this award on behalf of her late father. "This award would have meant a lot to him, because it's from you, fellow Caledonians," said Heaslip. "This award here tonight is about his hometown, a town where he was born and raised, the town where his children were born and raised, where two of whom still live with seven of his 10 grandchildren. When the idea of donating the pool was starting to be discussed, he spoke of wanting to leave a legacy for Caledonia. This was very important to him. He wanted to give something back to the town that he loved, that he remembered and enjoyed for years to come. I think we can all agree that he was successful in that quest. With his passing, I can speak for my entire family when I say we were completely overwhelmed by the kind messages, cards, words, and gestures from so many people telling us how he had touched their lives. I can say the same about this award here tonight. If he were here today, he would be very grateful. I am very proud to be able to accept this award on behalf of my dad."

$1.5-million gift from Mr. Ron Clark, HBA '65, and Mrs. Nancy Clark

A recent leadership donation from Mr. Ron Clark, HBA '65, and Mrs. Nancy Clark through The Ron and Nancy Clark Foundation will support Ivey's Pierre L. Morrissette Institute for Entrepreneurship.

The Clark's generous gift of $1.5 million will create the Ron and Nancy Clark Chair in Entrepreneurship, the first faculty chair dedicated to the study of entrepreneurship at Ivey. The Clark Chair will develop innovative research and teaching materials that will broaden the depth and dissemination of Ivey's unique programs in entrepreneurship, both in the classroom and beyond the School. The expanded teaching, research and outreach enabled by this Chair will contribute to a deeper understanding of how to build new high growth ventures more successfully.

In addition to the Chair, the Clark's will establish both the Ron and Nancy Clark Entrepreneurship Initiative Fund, providing stable funding for the Institute's extensive experiential learning and practitioner outreach activities and the Ron and Nancy Clark HBA Entrepreneurship Award, an annual award for a second-year HBA student based on academic achievement, a strong interest in entrepreneurship, and demonstrated financial need.

We are very grateful for this incredible donation from Mr. and Mrs. Clark. Mr. Ron Clark is the retired President of The Clark Companies, now a fourth generation family-owned and operated agricultural business headquartered in Caledonia, Ontario. Mr. Clark traces his entrepreneurial roots back to a small family operation in 1925. The Clark Companies is now a leading supplier of poultry and egg production equipment systems and provider of seed, fertilizer and crop protection products and services. The company also has one of the largest farming operations in Canada including poultry, egg, corn, wheat, and soybean production.

This exceptional commitment from Mr. and Mrs. Clark will strengthen Ivey's entrepreneurship research and teaching and open the door to entrepreneurship and family business for future generations to come.

The passing of a champion for youth education

We are saddened to learn of the passing of Ron Clark. With his wife Nancy, Ron made a generous donation in 1989 to establish the Clark Bursary Fund. It was created to assist youth in care and former crown wards in Ontario to achieve their academic and career goals. The Fund provided 20 one-time grants and 25 multi-year grants each year.

A memorial celebration will be held at Grace United Church, Caledonia, on Saturday, January 19, 2019 at 11am. In lieu of flowers, donations to Grace United Church, the Juravinski Cancer Centre C/O Hamilton Health Sciences Foundation, or a charity of your choice would be appreciated.

Caledonia couple receive top environmental award

By Janet Baine
GRCA Communications Specialist

Nature and education are incorporated into the collage of giving for Ron and Nancy Clark, recipients of the 2013 Honour Roll Award.

This is the highest level of award given out by the Grand River Conservation Authority and it is not given out each year. Yet it is only one of many awards and recognition events for the Clarks since last Christmas.

"It has been quite a year. We'll have to come down to earth soon," Ron says.

Last December Ron and Nancy both received Queen Elizabeth II Jubilee Medals. Then in June they were recipients of honorary doctorates from Laurentian University due to their philanthropy and volunteering. On July 1 they cut the ribbon at the newly redeveloped Kinsmen Park along the Grand River in Caledonia. In September they helped cut the ribbon at the newly-rehabilitated Taquanyah Conservation Area. At the end of October they received an Honour Roll award from the GRCA.

Their environmental contributions go beyond the GRCA and this watershed. Ron Clark was successfully running the Clark Companies when he first joined the Grand River Conservation Authority board in 1972. He became vice-chair in 1974 and held that position for 10 years. Ron was among those presiding over the official opening of the Taquanyah Nature Centre in 1973, the Guelph Lake Dam and Conservation Area in 1976 and the Caledonia Dam in 1980, to name a few.

"I'm a life-long resident along the river. Being part of the GRCA got me to become more involved with the Grand River," Ron says. He and Nancy are also long-time supporters of the Grand River Conservation Foundation. They contributed to the campaign to purchase 75 kilometres of abandoned railway lines and convert these into trails. Between 2003 and 2007, they contributed annually to the Campaign for Outdoor Education, which kept the GRCA's nature centres operating during a period of government cutbacks.

Many years ago they offered a substantial amount to the Grand River Conservation Foundation for habitat redevelopment at Taquanyah Conservation Area, if these funds were matched. This initial contribution helped to bring in funds to complete the project. The land was rehabilitated after the Taquanyah Reservoir was removed and wetlands were added along with trails, interpretive signs and benches. This is very special part of the southern Grand to visit and there is no cost to do so.

Connection children with nature

The Clarks also provided funds to improve the Taquanyah Nature Centre. This resulted in upgrades to washrooms, floors, windows and doors, lighting, deck and stairs.

The Clarks have 10 grandchildren, many who live in the area and some have visited Taquanyah.

"We're from a farming background, so we get outdoors, but a lot of kids are from the city and they don't get outside. We're thinking not only of our own grandchildren, but all the children because if there is no outdoor education facility, they don't have the option to go there and learn," Ron says. They also support the Joy Program, to bring students to Ruthven for interpretive programs.

Kinsmen Park in Caledonia was redeveloped by Haldimand County thanks to the Clarks. This 10-acre property along the Grand River now has a new pool, splashpad, gazebo, outdoor fitness equipment and a ball diamond. The new River Walk along the Grand River creates an accessible path as part of this major project funded. A committee of nine including the Clarks and two of their children worked out the details and then worked with contractors and staff.

The park opened on July 1. It is now the recreational and social hub of downtown Caledonia.

More award recipients

Stories about five more 2013 Watershed Awards will be featured in future issues of Grand Actions. The recipients were:

- Paul Clark is a Guelph teacher who has been planting trees for 17 years. He ensures that all students at St. Peter School plant trees each year. This has transformed the area around the school.
- The Turtle Island News has been holding an Earth Day Festival for the past seven years in Ohswekan. Since 2006, thousands of trees have been given out.
- The late Lynne Woolstencroft of Waterloo was a dedicated politician who undertook many environmental initiatives during her political career.
- George and Peggy Sarson of Waterloo started Run for the Toad at Pinehurst Lake in 2002. Now it is Canada's biggest trail run and the Sarsons have improved the amenities at Pinehurst.
- Bernd Brandt has planted 25,000 trees of 20 species on his property in Oxford County, creating a beautiful forest.

Awards are given out each fall by the GRCA. More information and videos are available on the GRCA website: www.grandriver.ca/award.

Growing a forest in Oxford

By Janet Baine,
GRCA Communications Specialist

When he sees an empty spot on the landscape, Bernd Brandt has an urge to plant a tree.

He has had that urge so often that he has planted 25,000 trees on his 150 acre property in Oxford County near Bright at the far west of the Grand River watershed. He received a 2013 Grand River Watershed Award for the forest he has created on his land.

"I really like mixed forests, this is what I like to see the most," Brandt says, stretching his hand toward a varied forest that includes 20 species of trees of different sizes that he has personally planted or had planted. Some are old trees and others are newly planted.

Brandt has always liked trees. When he moved to the Toronto area from Germany as a child, he says he watered the weeds in the yard hoping they would grow. He became a mechanical engineer and ironically his first job was working on logging equipment, but he left that behind long ago. Until recently, he had his own company specializing in mobile equipment for the utility and

Couple gives $5 million to Juravinski

News Dec 12, 2014 The Hamilton Spectator

A Caledonia couple well known for their philanthropy has made a $5-million donation to the Juravinski Hospital and Cancer Centre.

Ron and Nancy Clark presented the gift to the Hamilton Health Sciences Foundation Thursday night at the Concession Street hospital.

The couple said they were making the donation because they had personal experience with the quality of care at the Juravinski facility.

"It is our wish that this gift inspires others with the means to support the tremendous and talented teams at the Juravinski Hospital and Cancer Centre," Ron Clark said at the dinnertime ceremony.

The Clarks are part of a family business called The Clark Companies, an umbrella for a series of agri-businesses that serve the agricultural community across the globe. This includes Clark Egg Farms, Clark Poultry Farms and Clark Farming.

HHS said it was naming the Hematology Unit and Oncology Day Services in honour of the couple.

Celebrating 20 Years of Enriching Education for Youth
Recognizing the Clark Bursary Award recipients and the Clarks

On June 1, OACAS, member agencies and youth in care celebrated the 20th anniversary of the Clark Awards and the Clark family's ongoing commitment to education for youth.

For 20 years, Ron and Nancy Clark of Caledonia have graciously donated to the Clark Bursary Fund to ensure youth in care can pursue their academic dreams through scholarships and bursaries. From the first endowment in 1989, the number of new bursaries awarded annually has steadily increased from five bursaries of $250 to 20 bursaries of $4,500 per year for university studies and $3,000 per year for college studies in 2009.

History

- In 1989, there were five bursaries of $250 awarded to young people in care.
- In 1995, Ron and Nancy began contributing yearly to ensure 20 bursaries were available to deserving young people.
- In 2000, they introduced the one-time Clark Grant of $1,000 to youth in care and former youth in care pursuing educational, employment or skills development programs.
- In 2007, the Clarks' benevolence continued with the introduction of the Clark Graduation Award, a gift of $1,000 for Clark Bursary recipients completing their post-secondary studies, a generous graduation present from the Clarks.
- In 2009, 20 new bursaries and 20 grants were presented.

Since 1989, the Clarks' have donated $1.96 million and supported 480 bursary and grant recipients. The Clark Bursary Fund continues to make it possible for exceptional young people to pursue post-secondary education.

A 2009 Clark Bursary recipient, said of the Clarks, "Your generosity is greatly appreciated because without your support I would not be able to continue my dream of becoming a nurse. I've worked hard to get this far and now look forward to my graduation knowing that I finally made it thanks to you." Another 2009 Clark Bursary recipient, wrote said in a letter to the Clarks, "Education is something I greatly value. Having been a foster child at a young age, change of setting and relationships were [things] I was fairly used to. To me, school offered a type of continuity and stability. Please know that your generous contribution to my education will never be forgotten. With all my heart, thank you."

At the Annual Awards Dinner, the 20 new recipients expressed their gratitude to the Clarks for their ongoing contributions. This year the Clark family was represented by daughter Christie Heaslit and daughter-in-law Sandy Clark. On behalf of Ron and Nancy, they presented the awards along with Minister of Children and Youth Services, Deb Matthews to the 20 exceptional young people who were selected based on academic success and excellence in community involvement.

Each individual who receives a bursary is eligible for up to three more years of funding, depending on the educational program. Students attending university receive $4,500 per year and students attending college receive $3,000 per year. The Clark Bursary is valued at up to $18,000 for each youth for their university or college pursuits.

The 20 recipients in 2009 were selected for the Clark Bursary from these member agencies:

Applications for the Clark Bursary Awards are now closed for the 2017-2018 academic year.

The program is currently being refreshed. New information will be available starting Fall/Winter 2018

- Allowed youth 21 years and over to apply independently of their agency (although ideally the CAS would be involved and supportive)
- Required that youth apply for Ontario Student Assistance Plan (OSAP)

Awards background
